Hyron.

An Raglish writer, in the course of a review of a new life of Byron, says: His name did not appear on subscription lists, though his purse was always open to the needy; he wrote Hebrew melodies, which a living critic has pronounced to be "fraught with the spirit of Isaiah," but he did not subscribe to the "Propagation of the Gospel Society:" he abhorred slavery, but he did not swell the train of Mr. Wilberforce. He poured forth profusely, descriptions of the glories of foreign lands, but he indulged in none of the sentiments which make Englishmen "justly proud of their country.

In his opinions he was a kind of "Hermit in London"-not one of the smooth and similar people whose verses edify and whose after-dinner speeches delight an approving public. He puzzled people quite as much as he delighted them; and unluckily for himself, he delighted in pussling them. But the hero of a season rides and will ever ride with a slave in his triumphant chariot. The golden statue has always a foot of clay. Demus gets tired of its handsome and accomplished Alcibiades, and next to the pleaswro of seating him on the throne is the pleasure of dragging him off it.

Neither consent of credible witness es nor seal in his champion is able to display Byron in a uniform light. Those who were admitted to his intimacy concur in their accounts of his mutability. He was at once silent and self-centered, free of speech and affable of demeanor; at times sad and speculative as Hamlet, at times as mocking and grotesque as Scarron. Highly generous and benevolent, he deemed no sacrifice for others too great; yet he delighted to tease his friends, as children delight in teasing their pets; and his correspondence shows him parodying writers whom he highly esteemed, or penning lampoons on those whom he had praised in verse, and to whom he had dedicated poems.

consistent than his personal likings He was among the foremost innoyaters in English poetry, and yet a worshipper at the shrine of Pope. There is one reason for thinking him indifferent to Shakespeare, and though the poem which made him famous between bedtime and breakfast was written in the Spencerian measure, he could not endure the Facry Queen. Like Horace Walpole he reviled kings, yet there are few sympathies in his writings for "King Mob;" he often satirized his his own order, and yet he was proud of his Norman blood. He was consistent in his love for Shelley and Moore, and the strokes he most severely felt Tere those caused by the early deaths of his school and college friends. Shelley, by his scholarship, his imaginative power, and his metaphysical speculations, inspired him with a kind of awe, which did not, however, interfere with true affection. Moore's society and correspondence afforded him unmixed and unfailing delight. Neither was there any variableness in his demeanor to dependents. He knew their worth as well as he knew that of the parasites who sunned themselves in his favor. To Fletcher and Tita he was a kind and equable master; he played with, according to their deserts. the Medwins and Polidoris of his retinue.

An old gentiemau residing near Long Point was attacked the other day by some dogs. He began to fight them off with the but end of his gun, the gun was discharged, killing him instantly.

ST. NICHOLAS,

Scribner's Illustrated Magazine FOR GIRLS AND BOYS.

AN ICEAL CHILDREN'S MAGAZINE.

Messrs. Scribner & Co., in 1873, began the publication of Sr. Ricmonas, an Illustrated Magnains for Géris and Boys, with Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge as editor. Five years have passed since the first number was issued, and the magnaine has won the highest position. It has a monthly circulation of OVER 50,000 COPIES.

His literary tastes were not more opasitent than his personal likings.

Although the progress of the magazine has been a steady advance, it has not reached its editor's a steady advance, it has not reached its editor's a steady advance, it has not reached its editor's ideas of best, because her ideal continually out runs it, and the magazine as swiftly follows after. To-day Sr. Nicuotas stands

ALONE IN THE WORLD OF BOOKS: The New York Tribune has said of it: "Sr. Nichonas has reached a higher platform, and commands for its service wider resources in art commands for its service wider resources in an and letters than sny of its predecessors or contemporaries." The London Liberary World says: "There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice production of Scribner's press."

GOOD THINGS FOR 1878-DI

The arrangements for literary and art contribu-ons for the new volume—the sixth—are comtions for the new volume—the sixth—as plete, drawing from already favorite son well as from promising new ones. Mr. Frank R. Stockton's new serial story for boys,

"A JOLLY PELLOWSHIP," Will run through the twelve monthly parts,—be-ginning with the number for November, 1876, the first of the volume,—and will be illustrated by James E. Kelly. The story is one of travel and adventure in Florida and the Bahamas. For the girls, a continued tale,

"HALF A DOZEN HOUSEKERPERS."

By Katherice D. Smith, with illustrations by Frederick Dickman, begins in the same number, and a fresh serial by Susan Coolings, suitifed "Eyebright," with plenty of pictures, will be commenced early in the volume. There will also be a continued fairy-tale called

"RUMPTY DUDGET'S TOWER." Written by Julian Hawthorne, and illustrated by Alfred Fredericks. About the other familiar features of Sr. Nicholas, the editor preserves a good-humored silence, content, perhaps, to let her five volumes already issued, prophesy concerning the eixth, in respect to short stories, pictures, posms, homor, instructive sketches, and the lure and lore of "Jach-in-the-Pulpit," the "Very Little Folks" department, and the "Letter-box," and "Riddle-box."

The reputation it has attained, in consequence of the marvellous cures it has produced during the last half century, is a sufficient assurance to the public that it will continue to realize the happiest results that can be desired. In almost every section of country there are persons, publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs, by its use. All who have tried it ac-knowledge its superiority; and where its virtues are known, no one hesitates as to what medicine to employ to relieve the distress and suffering peculiar to pulmonary affections. CHERRY PECaffords instant relief, and performs rapid cures of the milder varieties of bronchial disorder, as well as the more formidable diseases of the lungs. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of Childhood, it is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued and restored to health.

This medicine gains friends at every trial, as the cures it is constantly producing are too remarkable to be forgotten. No family should be with-out it, and those who have once used Eminent Physicians throughout the country prescribe it, and Clergymen often recommend it from their knowledge of its effects.

G. ONDERDONK. Prop'r.

We have studied closely the various questions relating to fruit culture in Western Texas during the twenty-seven years of experience and observation, upon our own ground, We have thus enabled ourselves to present to the publica illst of fruits better adapted to our climate than can be offered by any other establishment.

Our pears cannot be excelled anywhere. Any one who has a good clay sub-soil and good drainage need not hunt a better pear country than this. Our plums and grapes are of the only classes that have been found successful here.

Our acclimated list of peaches is grafted, with a single exception, from new varieties originated from seed in Western Texas. We do not claim that our peaches are better than every other, but we do claim that our trees are proved as hardy and productive as any scrub seedling, while the qualities are not inferior to the old lists.

We propose to introduce our fruits into the San Marcos neighborhood. Wherever you can raise excrab seedlings our trees will do equally well. This question of combining hardiness, productiveness and quality is our leading feature.

We can supply a good assortment of ornamental trees and plants.

Everybody is invited to come and see our orchards, vineyards, nurseries and ornamental grounds.
